Art Rejections:

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

3. Claims 1-23 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Watanabe, U.S. pat. Pub. No. 2006/0125927.

Watanabe discloses a system and method for exchanging data between participants of a communication session comprising:

a) establishing a first connection for transmission of voice/data between first and second participants of a communication session (see page 6, par. 121);

Art Unit: 2154

b) selecting/activating a keyhole frame (i.e., thumbnail image) within a display of a hosting terminal (40A) that is in proximity to a first participant (see page 6, par. 118, 122);

c) streaming image data contained within the keyhole frame from the hosting terminal to the mobile terminal (40B) that is in proximity to a second participant (see page 6, par. 127).

Watanabe does not explicitly teach establishing a voice communication between the first and second participants. Watanabe however discloses a communication circuit of the mobile/host terminal for providing voice communications (see page 5, par. 99-106).

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to utilize such voice communication circuit to establish voice communication in Watanabe because it would have enabled the first and second participants communicate with each others.

Per claims 2-4, Watanabe teaches displaying and selecting thumbnail images on a mobile/host terminal by positioning cursor on the frame number/item (see page 6, par. 118). It would have been obvious to one skilled in the art to practice Watanabe invention with other known alternative item selection technique including positioning cursor on the thumbnail image frame.

Art Unit: 2154

Per claims 5-9, Watanabe teaches enabling the host participant to modify the thumbnail images using an image-processing unit (1A) connected to the host terminal (see page 6, par. 123-126). It is noted that the remote participant would facilitate a desired image modification by sending such request to the host participant via the voice communication with the host participant.

Per claims 10-18, Watanabe teaches providing a processor, a memory, and transceiver at the host/mobile terminal for displaying, selecting and transmitting image data to/from the host/mobile terminal (see page 5, par. 99-110).

Claims 19-23 are similar in scope as that of claims 1-18.

Conclusion:
